English Importance Given Elevation Faculty Adopts Recommendations

by Sally Arnold

ENGLISH has been raised to a new level of importance at Brigham Young University.

The BYU faculty recently adopted a set of recommendations by the Better English Committee of BYU, designed to improve the quality of written and spoken English of BYU graduates.

Included in the new English program are three major steps. A standard examination will be given as part of freshman English courses. Students must pass this test with a standard minimum in order to pass the course.

Students passing this test might still fail freshman English for failure to do required work in an acceptable manner.

FRESHMAN English examinations will be divided into three areas including mechanics of expression (Units 1 and 2), and effectiveness of expression (English 2 and 12) and reading effectiveness, (English 2 and 13)

Completion of the required courses in Freshman composition is now a prerequisite to a student's classification as a junior.

Composition is designed to provide tools for better work in most college classes, the committee said, so no student will be allowed to wait until his junior or senior years to finish freshman English requirements.

Probably the most radical change is the junior proficiency examination, testing student's abilities to write correct effective sentences and paragraphs and to organize their material into a logical whole.

PASSING this examination is a prerequisite for graduation. Students will be required to take the exam during the period when they have more than 90 and less than 110 quarter hours credit.

This will give those who fail the examination five quarters before graduation in which to take and pass a non-credit remedial course. No one will graduate without first passing the examination or the remedial course.

Standard Freshman English examinations were given at the end of last autumn quarter for the first time. The first junior proficiency examination will be given May 4, 1957 and thereafter on the first Saturday after registration each quarter.

A BOOKLET entitles English Standards at Brigham Young University will be available at the Student Supply Center by the beginning of spring quarter. This book will give examples of the kind of questions which might be asked on the junior proficiency examination and will point out in detail the kind of performance expected of a student on the examination.

According to Dr. Samuel C. Monson, chairman of the Better English Committee, said a program has been needed and considered at BYU for several years.

The new program is designed to improve the English standard of each individual student, Monson said.

IT ALSO follows the administration's policy of emphasis on remedial studies, he said.

Dr. Monson reported that Dean George Albert Smith, Jr., of Harvard University Graduate School had written a letter to President Ernest L. Wilkinson several years ago in which he stated that the BYU graduates at Harvard were consistently poor in English communications. Graduates who go on to Harvard and other graduate schools are conscientious but their classes. As Dr. Monson said, "If those students are consistently poor, what must the rest of our

by Gene Barlow

THE ATHENIAN Social Unit is wandering in the wilderness of vitational and from holding winter quarter activities, the Inter - Organization Council Court.

"But," stated Jack Nelson, IOC Court chief justice, "the court is suspending the sentence for a period of time as there is any violation during winter quarter the sentence will become immediately effective."

The Athenian plea of not guilty at the opening of the Monday night IOC Court trial changed to "guilty with clemency" in order to avoid a lengthy series of trials.

The unit had been charged with improper initiation methods used on their fall quarter pledges. It was accused of using axle grease and feathers and other "taboo" grazing procedures at their "Hell-Court" Nov 17.

MONROE McKAY, student-body president allegedly brought the charges against the Athenians for not upholding the ideals of the university.

Defense for the unit admitted using the grease and feathers but pleaded not guilty to the charge of improper procedures on the basis of "extenuating circumstances."

Nancy Briggs, IOC prosecuting attorney, recommended clemency and suggested the unit be placed on a probationary status for winter quarter.

Mrs. JUSTICE chose to "hand down" sentence and then suspend it.

Before sentence was passed the Athenians stated to the court that they would uphold the court's decision and not question the authority of Miss Briggs in prosecuting them.

Earlier they had objected to Miss Briggs and questioned her authority as IOC prosecuting attorney. They claimed that since she held several executive offices outside the court she was not eligible for the prosecutor's office.

Ondine' Fantasy Drama Begins Run Wednesday

by Valerie Hill

Daily Universe Staff Writer

"ONDINE," a romantic fantasy in three acts by Jean Giraudoux will be presented Wednesday through Saturday in the Fourth Auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

The play, directed by Dr. Lael Woodbury of the speech department, is the first seven-quarter dramatic production.

The fantasy uses magic, illusion, sudden appearances and disappearances to tell of the pure love of a sea nymph for a handsome knight errant.

INTO A humble fisherman's village comes Hans, the knight errant, in search of evils to right. There he meets and falls in love with Ondine, a sea goddess, who returns his love and becomes his wife.

To become human, however, Ondine makes a pact with the king of the sea that she will return to the water if Hans ever leaves her.

When Hans brings his bride to Castle Dun Isaac for a time, Ondine proves too goodness, courtly manners and intrigues, and as events by Hans de-

Navy Aviator Team to Interview Men for Flight Service

An interviewing team for aspecting naval aviators will on the Brigham Young University campus Thursday.

The team will administer the aptitude examinations during the evening of their appearance in the Engineering Building.

Lt. F. D. Hughes, the interviewing officer, emphasizes that there is no obligation involved to the taking of the examination.

The exam results will remain in Washington until such time as the prospective applicant indicates for flight training or is qualified by reason of age.

But until one whereof the examination would ever be taken again after a year.

Lt. Hopkins points out that why the first time these examinations have been given on campus and all interested citizens are encouraged to take advantage of this convenience

Service Through Love . .

Practical Religion Devotional Topic

by Barbara Miller

RELIGION as a practical tenet in life was the basis of the devotional talk given Tuesday by Marion G. Romney, member of the Council of the Twelve of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He said in so many things, a code and practical theology, religion should not be lost but allow one to realize the full purpose of the LDS doctrine, said Elder Romney. Purpose of the LDS Church declared the Apostle is "to bring men and women to a status of godhood."

This is possible since in the beginning God created man in his own image. "What could be more practical than that God's ten sons and daughters of God should have in final maturity the ability to become like God," said Elder Romney.

ELDER ROMNEY to achieve this exalted status men must acquire the knowledge of God's nature as well as stature, by partaking on the attributes of God. "Heard among these attributes," said Elder Romney is love, and the evidence of love is service. "We evidence our love for God and each other through service." The obligation is equal.

In LDS teachings the relationship of service to God and service to man is significant, stressed Elder Romney, since service to one's fellows is accepted by God as personal service to Himself. "Service to your fellowmen is the most effective way of serving God," he said.

THE LDS CHURCH has two services, proselyting and caring for the poor Missionary work began in 1830 and during the last century and a half, young men and women have filled foreign missions according to Elder Romney, carrying out God's command "Teach all nations whatsoever I have commanded you."

The second way of serving God is presently done under the LDS Church Welfare Program. "The obligation to care for the poor has been put on us by the Lord in every dispensation," said the Apostle.

"It is my conviction and faith that there is not an arbitrary command in our gospel," summed up Elder Romney.

The final test is "not is our religion practical, but are we individuals making a practical application of it?"

PRINTED WORD ... FOREVER

THIS WEEK marks the 251st anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. Born on January 17, Benjamin Franklin is looked upon as the greatest disciple of the printing industry in the United States.

For this reason each year, the week of Franklin's birthday is set aside as National Printing Week in which Americans should pause to consider the blessings the printing industry brings to our country and world.

FRANKLIN FELT so strong concerning the vital need of printing in our way of life that he once knelt by his bedside to utter these words: "Deal with me and with all men according to thy Holy Will, but let the printing word which brings men light, and let the printed word, which makes men free, and let the printed word, through which Thy word is spread, go on . . . and on . . . forever."

HERE AT Brigham Young University is operated one of the most modern and up-to-date printing plants in the inter-mountain area.

The Press, in addition, has facilities for the production of nearly every conceivable type of printed publication other than these popular student publications.

ANNUAL PROJECTS are the 500-plus page university catalog, summer catalog, departmental publications and catalogs, and many smaller but important jobs, such as basketball and football programs, dance programs, hundreds of thousands of tickets—both traffic and admission—and all the university forms used by the thousands each year in each office.

Multiply these efforts on the BYU campus by thousands of print shops the world over and it is especially easy to realize the tremendous import of the printing industry on our everyday lives.

AS THE PRESIDENT of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen said in a message to printers everywhere signifying the importance of printing and National Printing Week said, the "perfection of a more rapid, economical method of reproducing and communicating ideas was the key that opened the door to the intellectual dungeon of the Dark Ages and permitted mankind to step into the light.

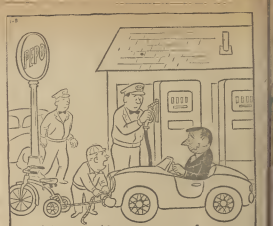
"Since then the pace of civilization's progress has been measured by the advancement of the printing trades and industry."

IN STRESSING the importance of printing and its unique position in the world of crafts and industry the craftsmen leader said that "printing is one of America's most important and largest industries in many ways.

"In printing, every job is a tailor-made one. Printing cannot be executed in advance and put on the shelf in the warehouse against future sales. Notwithstanding all the mechanical and scientific improvements of recent years, printing is not referred to as something 'manufactured.'

"ACTUALLY, a new word is needed to convey the fact that printing is a combination of skill, art, manufacture and distribution."

While the Daily Universe has no word to convey the importance of printing, it does join with the outstanding all the rest of the United States and world in saluting the men and women who the privileged to belong to the most important, select group anywhere—the PRINTERS.



"Now remember, mister—if I ever need towing you've got to pull me."

Why Yell When You Can Make A Date?

At the University of Oregon there has been talk of ending the football seating arrangement which presently segregates the male and female students. The Oregon Daily Emerald isn't too keen about the idea, suggesting that such action, instead of increasing school spirit, would be more likely to have an opposite result. Said the Emerald:

"What able-bodied, red-blooded, reasonably nice-looking fellow will yell his lungs out when he's sitting right next to an equally red-blooded, equally able-bodied and equally nice-looking young lady? He won't be yelling 'Hell' probably he making time' probably setting up a date for right after the game.

"And what fellow is going to yell when to do so would brand him as a gung-ho lunkhead in the eyes of the petite little coed sitting next to him? Conversely what petite little coed is going to yell when to do so would destroy the fellow's impression of her as a tender, soft-spoken dainty little miss?" (ACP)

Vaudeville Not Dead?

Entertainment for Students Provided By Nursing Faculty

Instructors of the Brigham Young University school of nursing entertained student nurses with dance song, pantomime, comedy and music Monday night in the auditorium at the student nurses home at Salt Lake City.

The program "Faculty Follies of '57," featured instructors from BYU and the Salt Lake branch of the school impersonating several well-known performers and drawing laughs with their own creations.

Before the program a meeting was held with Mary McNaghten, president of the SNAP, conducting. It was announced that a talent show is scheduled for March 4 and that a banquet is being planned. It was also announced that the school of nursing will enter the sculpturing contest during the Snow Carnival on the BYU campus.

Refreshments of punch and cookies were served at the end of the gathering.

Guests for the evening were members of the faculty and freshman students majoring in nursing from the BYU campus.

Faculty members in all departments are asked to give greater consideration to the use of essay-type examinations and term papers.

The English department plans to prepare a list of minimum essentials in good composition for all faculty members as an aid to them in judging student writing.

SEVERAL recommendations were included in the over-all program for improving faculty usage.

Questionnaires will be used to evaluate faculty members' English usage and speech mannerisms.

A handbook prepared by the English department will also be added to the general faculty handbooks.

Under the same program the Better English Committee was adopted as a permanent university committee with the duties of continuing studies of English on the campus and making further recommendations for improving the English standards here.

It will also check on the progress of the new program and see that it is carried out as outlined.

Cougar Guard Snags Second In Point Race

UTAH STATE'S hard-pressing Ted Smith moved into the lead usurping the Skyline Conference scorers notching up 39 counters last week running his total for league games to 84 and a 21-point average.

Figures released today from the MSAC Commissioner's office show that Tom Steinke, BYU scoring ace, has recorded a 20-point average for his first three conference outings. Steinke pushed through 41 points on the Cougars' eastern invasion boosting his total to 60. In third spot for the scorers is Terry Eckhardt, hustling Wyoming forward, who has hung up a 19.3 point average in the four conference games.

RUSTY Goodwin of New Mexico still clung to the lead among rebounders with 52 for the four games. Denver's Dick Streit has swept the glass 51 times in three league encounters and Utah State's Joe Locke per has plucked off 49 rebounds in his four games.

Two eagers, John Benson of BYU and Larry Bailer of Utah State, are setting a dizzy pace among the free throw tossers. Benson has sunk 28 of 30 tosses while Bailey has dunked 23 out of 24 charities.

UNIVERSITY of Utah leads all clubs offensively with a 79.3 points per game average, having run up 238 points in the three games. The best defensive mark has been posted by the Denver University Pioneers who have allowed an average of 64 points per game.

Included in the league's 26 top scorers are BYU's forward John Benson, in sixth place with 56 total points, and average of 18.7 per game, forward Lynne Rowe in 15th place with 41 points, and an average of 13.7, ad center Roy Thacker, 20 points for average of 12 per game.

HOW ABOUT BYU VS. WILT CHAMBERLAIN (KANSAS) IN 1957 NCAA FINALS?

It may sund like Rock Canyon fever to most of our camp hoop experts, however (as with most manifiest) there is so concrete cause for our optimism.

After years of tormenting frustration at the hands of s cage magnificents as Bill Russell, Swede Halbrook, Willy Nau Johnny and Eddy O'Brien, not to mention many other aces the coast, this may be the year to how I for us mountain fo

DO YOU REALIZE that the bold boys of Pacific Coast C ference athletics, Southern Cal, UCLA and Washington are cu rently leading the case in coast hoop warfare. And, oh do you l like that these same schools are riding the penalty box after hav their too hot hands slapped resoundingly by their conference t thers and the unbeating NCAA? As a result, these naughty o are now ineligible for NCAA playoff privileges.

THAT LEAVES one rather mediocre team, Oregon State, uphold coast honor in the semi-finals at Corvallis, Ore., ne March.

Let's take the case of BYU. The Cats are currently in the d ver's seat as far as Skyline play is concerned. If they can ex the Farmer pitchfork this weekend, it may be the Brighams all w way and this area's representative in Corvallis.

IF THEY CAPTURING 4-0 over that far, it will be pre so-so competition forming an obstacle for a leap into the fina bracket.

At this early date, combatants in the Oregon tourney w probably be OSC, BYU or Utah, Seattle and either Idaho St or Oklahoma City U.

OSC is the one team that edged BYU 62-55 in the seaso opener. Since then the Cougars have made giant strides in t provement while the tall Beavers have wallowed in a quagm of indecision, turning few of the corners that would make rning fourth in their league.

SEATTLE University has its finest squad since the best of dwarfs, the O'Brien twins departed for pro baseball. They may the Skyline representative's stiffest opposition come tourney ti They've got a genuine (if there is such a thing) candidate for A American in one Elgin Baylor.

It may sound incredible, but is it . . . . BYU vs. "The St for the National Championships.

Foul shooting pays off. Cat free lane sharpies have hit a t of 317 field goals to the opposition's 275. The Cats have been o hit from the field 345 to 334 Skyline foes. Conference-opponen Cat games thus far. The Cougars are averaging 76.8 points game while opponents are hitting for a 68.6 average

Globetrotters Show Off Talents In 'Defeating' Washington Team

The Harlem Globetrotters clowned their way to "victory" over their traveling, made-to-order opponents, the Washington Generals, Monday night in a nearly packed George Albert Smith Fieldhouse.

The 82-60 score was purely incidental to the exhibition of basketball wizardry and "side show" entertainment.

"Meadowlark" Lemon, loose-jointed pivot man, displayed amazing shooting, passing and ball handling ability besides being the clown prince of the Harlems.

Leon Dillard, dribbling genius, supplied the third quarter antics when Lemon went to the bench, to the apparent consternation of their way to "victory" eree.

The Harlems' troop of acrobats provoided excellent pregame and halftime entertainment. It was difficult to tell which was the feature of the extravaganza.

The Trotters delighted the spectators with spectacular ball control and passing, when they weren't clowning. Some of their gimics included a bucket of paper, lopsided basketball and one which had a rubber cord attached giving a yo-yo effect.
